Subject: The Bird Flu can be contained by a comprehensive and radical approach
Attachments: TheRoad.pdf

CDC has approached the Bird Flu threat from a limited perspective. This approach will prove ineffective, as the flu virus can be spread by more than just plane and ship passengers. However it is possible to contain and eradicate the virus before it causes maximum harm only by comprehensive and radical measures.

We have examined the problem and concluded that there is a way to protecting both US and international citizen's concerns about privacy erosion, manage the threat and operate in a pandemic scenario where there is severe economic dislocation. We attach our submission.
